Gentlemen:

Reference is made to your retention of the special tooling which was produced for use under the subject contracts.

After discussion with our technical representatives, it was tentatively decided that the tooling should be stored and preserved for a long term period. This preservation and storage period should be at least ten years.

However, before we embark on this program, there are certain factors which we would like to explore more thoroughly.

Of primary importance is the cost factor for both the preservation and storage at your plant for this period. It would be appreciated if your company would submit a proposal to cover the costs involved. We understand that different methods of preservation would be utilized depending upon the size of the tooling.

We would also appreciate any information you may have as to how long a period of time would be required, if an emergency arose, to prepare the tooling for production after it had been preserved.

We know that our decision on the disposition of this tooling has been tardy, but if you will submit a proposal and any constructive suggestions you may have concerning this matter, we shall make every effort to resolve it.
